Should any specific funds or securities be mentioned in an MHC or third-party article, it may not reflect any funds or securities recommended by MHC, nor should it be considered an investment recommendation or investment advice.

These investment strategies may or may not be appropriate to incorporate in our client portfolios. MHC’s analysis is subject to change as information develops regarding specific investment goals, profiles, and economic markets.

MHC suggests that individual investments typically constitute a minority allocation within a client’s fully diversified portfolio.

Madrone Hill Capital, LLC recommends portfolio allocations according to each client’s specific investment needs in accordance with a signed Advisory Agreement and Engagement Letter.

Therefore, each client’s portfolio has a unique set of circumstances and, consequently, investment results. MHC’s outlook may change if the client provides new information or if there are material changes in the market or investment recommendations.

While MHC intends to add value to our clients in non-investment related areas of tax and financial planning, we do not hold ourselves out to be practicing accountants or estate planning attorneys.

You should consult your accountant or estate planning attorney for any legal or accounting needs.

To the extent that our website contains information about specific companies, securities, and investment strategies – including whether they are profitable or not – it is provided only as a means of illustrating a potential investment thesis.

It is not intended as a reflection of any securities or funds held by clients nor the experience of any client; the holdings and performance of which may be materially different from any investments discussed.
